NEVER, NEVER

A swinging, retro-tinged piano groove with a bittersweet heart: a song about accepting that you can't be with someone, and noticing that it slowly starts to hurt a little less.

"As time goes by, the less it hurts."

Sound: The Beatles meets Parcels. Produced with Hamburg-based producer Sounds Like A Million, who also produced the debut EP Searching.

Bio_

Caspar Klein is a Berlin-based musician and storyteller who combines jazzy-pop influences with a reflective, poetic songwriting style.

His music explores love, loss, friendship, and the restless pace of urban life. A central theme in his work is redefining masculinity, presenting vulnerability and sensitivity as signs of strength.

With his debut EP Searching (2025), produced with Hamburg-based producer Sounds Like A Million (credits incl. Annett Louisan, Sarah Brightman), Klein introduced himself as a sensitive voice in the German indie-pop scene. The release received international press coverage and airplay in the UK, Italy, France and beyond, praised for its "delicate emotional honesty" and "soulful, introspective storytelling." The title track's music video, directed by award-winning German filmmaker Andreas Arnstedt (Die Entbehrlichen), visually extends the EP's themes, following Klein drifting through Berlin between day and night, reflection and restlessness.

In November 2026 he released his new single NEVER, NEVER.
